About myself
I am someone who is not only quick at learning and good at solving complicated problems, but also with logical and creative mind that enables me to raise some insightful views. I know how to ask good questions, and I know where to go start getting answers, whether they are found in the internet, found in conversation with colleagues, or found through experimentation. I am someone who everyday works to improve myself and my skills which is a part of maturing and becoming better at what I do.
